MARKETING BILL
ONLY FARM HELP
BY THIS CONGRESS

Passed by Senate After Fess Credits Measure is Beaten

Washington, June 30—(AP)—With surplus crop legislation crushed beneath the weight of economic and political controversy, the administration's cooperative marketing bill stands today as the only farm relief measure likely to be enacted at the current session of congress. After a bitter ten-hour session yesterday the Senate voted down the Fess credits measure, which, like the cooperative marketing bill, had the avowed support of President Coolidge, by a majority of 28 votes, a margin nearly five times as great as that by which the McNary equalization fee rider was defeated last week.

Then, one substitute proposal after another was rejected and with only a relatively small part of the Senate membership remaining in the chamber, the cooperative marketing bill was passed without a record vote. It would establish a new division in the Agriculture department to handle cooperative marketing problems and authorize an appropriation of $225,000 for its work. It has been passed by the house, but because of Senate amendments, including one eliminating naval stores from its provisions, it must go to conference between the two chambers for adjustment of these differences.

Little delay in final enactment of the bill however is expected from these changes, and house leaders held today's program open to expedite the progress of the measure toward the White House. Nothing else of major importance remains on their slate for action prior to adjournment which they hope to bring about at the end of this week or early next week.

STORY OF HUNT FOR DURKIN IS GIVEN TO JURY

Associate of Murdered
Agent on Stand in Case Today

Chicago, June 30—(AP)—How federal agents sought Martin J. Durkin, wanted for alleged interstate transportation of a stolen automobile, was told today by James D. Rooney, secret service man, to the jury in Durkin's trial for murder of Edwin C. Shanahan, the secret service agent shot to death by the youth in making his escape from arrest.

The search occupied most of the time of Rooney and Shanahan, the former said, for several days in October, 1925, and it terminated on Sunday afternoon, October 11, when Durkin was seen driving into a south side garage in the car.

While Shanahan went to arrest the youth, Rooney was on other duties in the vicinity, he testified, and he next saw Shanahan lying on a marble slab at a nearby hospital, his life ebbing rapidly.

Testifying within the narrow lanes of a labyrinth of objections imposed by Durkin's counsel, Rooney evoked a stormy scene when, referring to Durkin, he called him "a fugitive from justice" at the time of the search.

"You know better than to interject that remark," shouted Eugene McGarry, Durkin's lawyer and he murmured in an audible side remark about Rooney's "coaching."

COOLIDGE SHOWS NO WORRY TRACE

THRIVES ON JOB
THAT COST LIVES OF STRONGER MEN

Wiry Constitution Has Shown No Signs of Great Strain

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Often and often the job of president of the United States has been referred to as a man-killer. It is to some men.

But it can't kill President Coolidge. When he dies it won't be the presidency.

Calvin Coolidge has been president for just about three years. He will be 54 years old on July 4. Little younger than his predecessor, Warren G. Harding, he has spent more time in the White House than Harding did. Harding, like his predecessor, Woodrow Wilson, lost his life because of the job. But Coolidge is keeping his health as well as if the presidency were a sort of vacation.

Calvin Coolidge has two qualifications which pre-eminently fit him to stand up under the wear and tear of perhaps the most trying job on earth.

A Hardy Constitution
He has an old-fashioned New England constitution. Not that he's the big, powerful type. On the contrary, he's slight, but he's physically tough. Also springy. Wear and tear make no impression on him—no visible impression, at any rate.

And he doesn't worry. At least, he says he doesn't, and he certainly shows no signs of it. Quite a few things have gone wrong for him at this current session of Congress. A president like some we have had would have been all upset by them. Calvin Coolidge hasn't given an indication that they even ruffled him.

In only one way has the White House marked the president.

He doesn't get enough open air exercise and he has an in-door pallor that is noticeable.

He seems perfectly "fit," however. When he does get out for a walk, he makes his secret service escort jog right along to keep up with him. He makes, at a guess, a good four miles an hour, which isn't a track record, but is a round pace for an amateur, on a city pavement.

The chief executive doesn't look a bit older than the day he was sworn into office.

He isn't in the least bowed under the weight of care and responsibility.

He hasn't a gay, cheerful face. In repose it sinks into rather cold, gloomy lines. Even when it smiles, it's only a trace of a smile. But the presidential face always was that way.

The president undoubtedly works too hard—old presidents have to—but he knows extraordinarily well how to take care of himself. His doctor doesn't have to warn him that he's overdoing. Sometimes his doctor does warn him of it, but if he doesn't think so he pays no attention. On the other hand, if he does think so, he lets up without waiting for any warning.

Shaking hands with numberless callers is one of the hardest things a president has to do. It played its part in killing President Harding. When tourists get too thick President Coolidge calls a halt on the handshaking. He sits at his desk and permits himself to be looked at, but promiscuous presidential handshaking is taboo every time there's an unusually heavy influx of out-of-town visitors in Washington.

The president likes plain cooking and, so far as he, personally, is concerned, not a great deal of it.

No Fuss Over John.

On one subject President Coolidge is positively cranky. He won't permit a fuss to be made over his son, John.

He means to keep John natural, if presidential and parental authority can accomplish it. There'll be a "young prince" under this administration only over Father Coolidge's dead body.

"Let John alone," he says impatiently, every time an attempt is made to fuss over him.

Greatest Loss of Life
Was in Sumatra, Re-

New York, June 30—(AP)—Since last Saturday, when the Mediterranean region from Italy to Egypt was shaken by a series of quakes, there have been seismic disturbances in various parts of the world.

In only one of these phenomena, however, has there been any considerable loss of life. This was at Pandjeng, on the island of Sumatra, where it is reported that more than 100 persons were killed on Monday and 32 others at two other places on the island. Much material damage was done by the temblor.

Great damage, but with few fatalities, was done on the island of Rhodes, while lies in the Aegean Sea, at Candia, on the island of Crete, and in the province of Forgia in Italy, last Saturday. In these three regions many houses were razed and numerous persons were injured. In Egypt, likewise, damage to property resulted and the populace was terrified.

Tuesday, shocks were felt in southern Rhodesia and at 5 towns in France, Strasbourg, Epinal, Colmar, Mulhausen and Belfort. All these however, were minor intensity and no material losses resulted.

Attorney Henry S. Dixon, whose critical illness has been the source of much concern on the part of his many friends, was reported considerably improved this morning.

Work on Improvement of North Side Service to Start Soon

The Dixon Water Company will let a contract soon for the construction of an eight inch main across Rock river, Secretary George W. Hawley announced today. The new main will provide double service to residents on the north side of the river, there being but one main now in service. Work on the new main will be started as soon as possible and it was announced that the improvement would cost approximately $15,000.

The eight inch service main will start from the company's plant at the foot of Artesian Place crossing the south channel of the river to the city island, where it will be placed in a five foot ditch, thence across the main channel of the river connecting with the present service pipes on the north side. Permission has been granted the Water company by the War department and the Illinois Waterways Commission to use Rock river for this purpose.

The city council last evening voted permission to the company to lay its mains across the city island, the Illinois Northern Utilities company, owners of the property, having likewise granted permission. Mayor Frank D. Palmer signed the order directing the company to make the improvement.

Louis Dixon of Springfield has been called to Dixon by the serious illness of his son, Attorney Henry S. Dixon.

MAYOR OF
NORTHAMPTON AT 38STATE TO REBUILD
DAM AT HATCHERY
DAMAGED BY FLOODYorkville Institution to be Repaired and Put Into Service

Springfield, Ill., June 30—(AP)—Rebuilding the dam at the state fish hatchery at Yorkville will be undertaken at once according to William J. Stratton, Director of Conservation.

"When the spillway in the dam was washed out by a cloudburst recently," said Mr. Stratton, "more than fifteen hundred parent fish and at least a million of this year's hatch were swept into the Fox river."

"The Yorkville hatchery which was started two years ago is one of the six hatcheries now owned and operated by the State. Almost a million black bass, crappies, bluegill and sunfish were distributed from this one hatchery last year and a much larger distribution was expected this year."

"Work is also expected to start soon on a natural hatchery near Peoria and on the Judy Memorial tract at Tullula in Menard county. The latter, a hundred acre tract of virgin timber with several large springs, was donated to the state recently by C. C. Judy of Tullula."

"When these are completed we will have eight hatcheries in production for next year. The purchase of land for these hatcheries as well as all expenses of maintenance and distribution of the fish is paid by revenue from fishing licenses without one cent from general taxes."

"For economy of distribution and rapid delivery by truck over the hard roads the hatcheries have been located in various sections of the State."

"Hatcheries now in operation at Springfield, Rockford, Yorkville, Carlyle, East St. Louis, Peoria, Tullula and Mendota. Several other sites are being considered."

The contract for paving the east parking space on the river front was awarded to the firm of Stephan & Heagy of this city at last evening's meeting of the city council. Five contractors submitted bids for the job as follows: Mark D. Smith & Sons, $1,865; John F. Doyle, $1,749.60; E. E. Uhl, $1,671; Frank M. Hughes, $1,570 and Stephan & Heagy, $1,525.20.

The work is to be started next week on the parking space east of the Galena avenue bridge. The old abandoned side track is to be removed by the Northwestern, and an entrance to the parking space will be from the Galena avenue end and this will be paved. Most of the parking space will also be paved and the exit will be on the Ottawa avenue end of the grounds. With the completion of the paving, the parking space will be marked off into zones for the parking of automobiles.

A petition was presented to the council asking the city to vacate an alley in Steinman addition, no action having been taken on the matter to permit the council to investigate further.

The board of local improvements had a busy session following the council meeting. The public hearing on local improvement ordinance, No. 223, providing for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Monroe avenue between Third and Fifth streets, saw no objections entered. The board voted to modify the original ordinance, requiring the installment for the payment of the improvement to be made in seven payments instead of ten.

The board voted to advertise for bids on the pavement of Highland avenue and Seventh street under separate improvement ordinances, bids to be opened at 8:30 in the evening, Tuesday, July 13.

Brannan descended into the engine pit to repair a locomotive. A small snake fell from the edge of the pit into the gauntlet of his glove. Before he could jerk the glove from his hand, he was bitten twice.

SENATE INQUIRY INTO ELECTIONS
TAKES NEW TACK

Reed Turns Investigation
Over to Dry Committeemen

Washington, June 30—(AP)—Turning from its inquiry into the affairs of dry organizations, the Senate campaign funds committee today called Captain William H. Stayton, of Smyrna, Maryland, founder and national chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Chairman Reed turned the witness over to dry members of the committee for questioning regarding the activities of the wet organization in politics, its history and its finances.

"It has been slanderously stated that there are several drys on the committee and I shall turn Captain Stayton over to one of you for examination. Then there won't be any charge that I am covering anything up."

Examination of the witness was taken over by Senator King, democrat of Utah. Stayton said the purpose of the organization he founded in 1913 was to encourage obedience to the dry laws so long as they were on the statute books, but to do everything that could be done "decently" to bring about the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

Has 726,000 Members
"What's the membership of your organization," King asked.
"I think it is 726,000."

"Distributed over the states?"
"Yes, fairly generally, a little larger in Ohio and New York than in the other states."

Stayton testified that Dr. J. J. Seelman of Milwaukee is vice president of the National Association and that Gordon C. Hinkley of Washington is secretary and treasurer. The headquarters here are in "eight small rooms," he said, with a staff of about 20.

The examination was suspended at this point while the committee went into executive session with John J. McCreary, deputy sergeant at arms of the Senate, as to why subpoenas had not been served on Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Republican state committee and Magistrate Frank X. O'Connor, anti-Vare leader in Philadelphia.

No Announcement Made

No announcement was made after the executive session and the questioning of Stayton was resumed. He said that in those states where the association was strong it would go ahead with activities in the election this year and proceed with "a program of education," to build up the organization in other states.

"To what extent do you attempt to control primaries or elections?" King asked.

"To as great an extent as we can through our membership."

The national wet organization and its state branches are handling an average of about $186,000 a year, Stayton said. The money is used in part in political campaigns with a view to the selection, on a non-partisan basis, of public officials who favor repeal of the dry laws.

Assn. Worked for Vare
During the recent Pennsylvania republican primary campaign, officials of the association worked for William S. Vare, he said, the successful candidate for the senatorial nomination, sending out a form letter asking for contributions from the 80,000 members of the organization in that state.

Some mass meetings were held for the purpose of aiding Vare, and the expenses, amounting to $3,500, were paid by the association.

Chairman Reed explained that in the Pennsylvania inquiry alone, the committee already had spent more than $6,000 of the original allowance of $10,000.

"If we are to go into Illinois and other states where there are demands," Reed said, "it will be necessary to pay stenographer and witness fees. I do not know how much it will cost, but I can assure the senate the committee will not spend any money unnecessarily. What has been disclosed has been worth the price."

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Grain Prices Affected

by Congress Failure

Chicago, June 30.—(AP)—Defeat of farm legislation at Washington was followed by lower prices for all grain in the early dealings today, corn and oats touching bottom most levels this season.

Favorable weather for the harvest in the southwest, tended also to weaken values. After an irregular start, ranging from 1 1/4c decline to 1/2c advance, wheat underwent a material setback all around. Corn showed more depression than other grains, opening 1 1/4 to 1 1/2c off, and later making a little more. Provisions were firm.

BRITISH ARTISTS LEAN TO LANDSCAPES

London, June 30.—(AP)—Romance and lovely women do not figure largely among the 600 pictures in this year's Royal Academy. There are scarcely half a dozen pictures displaying the figure of a woman. Most of the pictures are portraits and landscapes, many of them. Many critics are inclined to believe most of the painters of the British Academy are women haters and haters of color.

President Joins Other Delta Zeta Delegates

Yesterday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Cleaver of 703 Brinton avenue, a next year's Senior in Eureka College, joined other delegates in Chicago, and started on the "Delta Zeta Special" for the National Convention of this Fraternity at Berkeley, Cal., July 5-9. Miss Cleaver enjoys this good fortune by virtue of her election to the Presidency of Pi Chapter in Eureka. One hundred forty from the Central and Eastern states made up the special train over the Milwaukee & St. Paul, which was routed via Kansas City, Denver, and Ogden, to San Francisco. Returning, the delegates will separate into small parties, according to their choice of routes. Miss Cleaver will visit friends and relatives in Los Angeles, have a taste of ocean travel to Seattle, take a look at Rector National Park, and arrive home via St. Paul, about Aug. 1. Her companions in travel from Central Illinois will be Misses Ella Snook of Dana, Elise Bullington of Henry, and Opal O'Brien of Canton.

Enjoyable Time for The Baptist Choir

The choir of the First Baptist church had a most enjoyable picnic supper at the country home of their conductor, Mr. Conrad, on Tuesday night. About fifty of the choir and their friends attended to participate in the good things provided. The lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the choir gathered together had a splendid program of sacred and patriotic music. Professor Baldwin, chairman of the musical committee, eulogized the conductor and choir for the faithful way in which they were carrying out their work in the church. Mr. Conrad thanked them in a gracious little speech for their loyalty and told them that he was planning another special musical program for the early fall. The pastor also thanked all for their help in a few well chosen words. After a vote of thanks to their host and hostess the program closed by everybody singing together, "Good Night, Ladies."

Meeting of W. R. C. Monday Afternoon

The regular meeting of the Womans Relief Corps was held Monday afternoon with a good attendance of members present. The chairman of the Relief Committee reported making several calls on the sick members, distribution of quite a lot of clothing and sending 25 pounds of sewed carpet rags to the Soldiers' Hospital at Maywood. It was our pleasure to have with us one of our members, a past treasurer of the Dixon Corps, Mrs. Hazel Curran from Los Angeles, Calif. She spoke of the pleasure it afforded her to meet with us again. Our charter was draped in loving memory of two of our past Department Presidents, Mrs. Daggett and Mrs. Farlow, who have passed away since our last meeting. The meeting closed in regular form.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—
Stewed rhubarb, cereal, thin cream, crisp rye toast, soft cooked eggs, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—
Stuffed baked potatoes, whole wheat bread and butter sandwiches, fruit salad, milk, tea.

Dinner—
Broiled sirloin steak, mashed potatoes, creamed stringless beans, jelly vegetable salad, strawberry ice-cream cake, brain rolls, milk, coffee.

This is an excellent quick dinner after an afternoon out when the "cook" has on her best dress and has no appetite. The salad and dessert have spent the afternoon in the refrigerator, the beans have been cooked ready to reheat in cream sauce, the potatoes will cook in 30 minutes and the steak in less—depending on how rare you like it—so in a short time and without a mad rush you can have a dinner sure to please the man of the house piping hot on the table.

Strawberry Ice-Box Cake.
One quart berries, 4 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 3 eggs,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup butter, 1 cup confectioners' sugar, 2 egg sponge cake,  $\frac{1}{2}$  pint whipping cream.

Bake a 2-egg sponge cake in a shallow pan or springform mold using the following rule. Beat yolks of 2 eggs well, adding one-third cup of granulated sugar gradually and beating constantly. Add 5 tablespoons boiling water, still beating with the Dover beater. Add one-third cup of sugar and beat well. Mix and sift  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup pastry flour,  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoons baking powder and  $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon salt and add to first mixture. Beat until smooth and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry and  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon vanilla. Pour into oiled and floured pan and bake 50 minutes in a moderately slow oven. When cool cut out the center with a sharp knife and fill with the following mixture.

Reserve 12 of the finest berries to use to garnish the cake. Hull and wash remaining berries and rub through a wire sieve. There should be 1 cup of juice and pulp. Beat yolks of eggs well and combine with cornstarch and granulated sugar mixed and sifted. Put into top of double boiler with strawberry juice. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from heat and cool. When cool add butter and confectioners' sugar stirred until very creamy. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Fill the cake shell with this mixture, replace top of cake and put in the ice-box. Let chill eight hours or longer. When ready to serve cover with cream whipped until stiff with 1 tablespoon powdered sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Garnish with strawberries and serve. This will serve ten.

Beautiful Early Morning Wedding

At a beautiful early morning wedding at St. Patrick's Catholic church today, Miss Alice Welch, daughter of Mrs. Helen Welch of this city and Robert F. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hill, were married. At 7:30 o'clock in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends, Rev. Father Michael Foley, pastor of St. Patrick's church, officiated at the impressive ceremony.

The lovely dark eyed bride wore a beautiful gown of peach colored georgette and net, with silver ribbons and trimmings. Her graceful white hat was trimmed in peach color, and her slippers were white kid with white hose. Her flowers were bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lucille Welch as maid of honor, who was charming in a dainty frock of orchid taffeta, with tiny flowers and silver lace. She wore silver hose and slippers and her picture hat was of orchid. Miss Welch carried pink roses and wistaria colored sweet peas. Edward Hill attended his brother as best man.

After the wedding ceremony a reception and breakfast were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hanson, 321 Ottawa avenue, Mrs. Hanson being the sister of the bride. Mrs. Hill is a valued employee at the Kline Accessory & Tire Shop on First street. "Bob" is a quiet and genial young man with hosts of friends. His bride is a charming young woman, with a most attractive personality. For a number of years she has been employed at the Purdy Confectionery where her unfailing courtesy and smiling good humor won her hosts of friends. The friends of both young people join in wishing them every happiness for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill on their return from their wedding trip will be at home to their friends 321 1/2 Ottawa avenue, after August 1st.

Lieutenant Richardson Married June 7th

Miss Georgia McDonald and Lieutenant William L. Richardson were united in marriage at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, June 7, at San Francisco, Calif., by Rev. E. O. Helman, pastor of the Methodist church of Redwood, Calif. The ceremony was very quiet, due to a death in the bride's family a few days before; the bride being attended by Miss Gene Lessman, and the bridegroom by Lt. E. A. Markle, a classmate at West Point Academy.

The bride was very charmingly gowned in a white ensemble, embroidered in green, with small green hat. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. The newlyweds sailed June 16 on the S. S. Chateau Thierry for Honolulu, Hawaii, where Lt. Richardson will take up his duties with the U. S. Coast Artillery Corps. Mrs. Richardson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McDonald of Brule, Neb., and Lt. Richardson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Richardson of this city. Many local friends extended sincere best wishes. When Lieut. Richardson and his bride arrived at the pier to board the boat for their trip, they found a company of about twenty-five or thirty friends gathered to bid them bon voyage and they formed a gay and lively party. On arriving at their state room Lieutenant and Mrs. Richardson found it stacked with a profusion of lovely flowers, and gifts of books and candy, making their departure a happy one.

Many beautiful flowers and gifts were presented the bride and groom on this happy occasion. Their children gave them matching rings of the O. E. S. and M. W. A. as a token of love to their parents.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Richardson are well and enjoying life very much and especially their old friends and memories.

THE MOMENT OF HESITATION.

On June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee, of Virginia, arose in the Continental Congress to declare that "these United States are, and ought to be, free and independent states."

It was a moment charged with suspense. Members looked at one another wonderingly. The older, the more conservative, shook their heads. It was the dream of a young radical, a lovely dream, but it could never be.

Britain was too mighty. Her power stretched over the seven seas and her word was law around the world. A disorganized band of colonies, arrayed against the world's empire in the heyday of her power.

And so the sensible members of the Continental Congress arose, one by one, and cast their doubts. Some day, perhaps, they said, but not now. Be patient. Wait.

John Adams, the smiling intellectual, the condescending, was the first to respond to the call of the fiery young Virginian.

"Second the motion," he said. Faces were turned toward him in awe.

It was a great Congress, but like any other. There were proposals, counter-proposals, haggling, sparring for time, oratory. It was a great Congress pausing on the brink of war and disaster.

The middle colonies reared their scarecrows. The French might fear a rising power and unite with England to divide the colonies as possessions. The campaign might be unsuccessful, and "it might be better to propose an alliance with Great Britain while our affairs wear a hopeful aspect."

It was the dreaded offer of compromise. It was the time to call for the test, the showdown. Lee called for it.

"Vote now," he demanded, three days after he had introduced his resolutions, "and let the dissenters take their time."

Lee had taken the way great things are done. The colonies voted, seven to five, to let Jefferson head a committee and go ahead with the framing of a Declaration of Independence. Thus the way was paved for that first great July Fourth. Thus the way is paved for every great advance, for every new movement—by "voting now and letting the dissenters take their time."

LULLABY LANE.

(By Hal Cochran.)

Along in the wee hours, when all is at rest, a shrill little voice breaks the still. You wonder, at times, how a child stands the test of crying so hard. Is it ill?

You hie to the bedroom and find, very soon, a youngster's just having its fling of howling for some sort of lullaby tune. The kind that a mother can sing.

When wrapped in a blanket, and taken from bed, the tot doesn't cry any more. The little one knows that it's soon to be fed, ere mother starts walkin' the floor.

From bedroom, to kitchen, to front room to hall. The walking is never in vain. If the tot's sung to sleep—then it's fun, after all, to travel through lullaby lane.

BUT THE WOMAN IS HANGED.

They hanged Mrs. Louise Calvert in Strangeway jail at Manchester, England, a few days ago. Mrs. Calvert was the mother of three children, one of them a baby.

Here is a grand chance for the moralizers. But while society considers death as the punishment for murder, there should be no discrimination on any basis. All of us are equal in death.

Mrs. Calvert herself, of course, is dead. It might be interesting to hear her comment on the humanitarians' cry of "What a pity!"—after she has been hanged.

The Nation Observes Founders' Day Today

In honor of the Founders of America

Some years ago Gladstone, a profound student of government and of history, surveying from the perspective of a century, the achievement of the founders of the American republic, declared that these founders were the wisest body of men ever assembled at a given time to advance the interests of the human race.

The leaders of the period of the Revolution have never been equalled by those of any other in the building of a nation. The times called for courage—and they had it. They called for courage—and they had it. They called for fire and force—and they had it. They called for patience and perseverance—and they possessed it. But they called above all for wisdom—and they had that in a superlative degree.

The men who argued the case of the colonies in the preliminary stages of the Revolution were intellectual giants capable of coping in debate on governmental problems with the foremost statesmen of England. Otis and Adams could only be answered by the rattle of musketry. The "Summary View" of Jefferson furnished the arsenal on which even an Edmund Burke was pleased to draw for ammunition in fighting in the Parliament against the oppressive policies of the Crown.

They, who formed the Constitutional Convention, were ripe in wisdom, and deep in the eruption of the science of government. They knew all governmental forms that were ever tried, and knew strength and weakness. To most of them the past paraded by and they saw the pitfalls of other times. They were familiar with the political philosophers of all ages, and they had the practical wisdom to select the features that were in harmony with the genius of the American people.

Thus they drew on all the wells of wisdom from those of ancient days to those of Locke.

What a marvelous galaxy! Washington, the moderator, Jefferson the philosopher, Madison the scholar, Hamilton the builder, Ellsworth the compromiser, Jay the thinker—practical idealists selecting with unerring wisdom the material for the building of a state capable of withstanding the passions of men, reconciling their conflicting interests, and meeting the necessities of the changing years.

They built for the centuries because they built on the elements. Their genius was in their presence, and their putting aside of the non-essentials.

These men were marvels—they knew how to build a dream on the realities.

Your stepfather would not allow it, said my lover.

"But, dearest," I answered, "I'll be of age very soon and then—"

"Yes I know," he interrupted me "then as soon as possible you'll be my wife."

"Judy I believed in him—and—and—I was very happy. Well, last week when he and I were out driving late at night my car broke down, or rather it stopped running in front of one of the most disreputable road houses near Chicago."

"I expect that everyone in the city knew all about the place except me."

"Barry took me in there, and, although I did not know it, he wrote upon the register 'Barry Cornwall and wife.'"

"We stayed in separate rooms, of course, and Judy, I was that innocent that when I went into my room and locked the door I thought that I was perfectly safe."

"I lay awake a long while and was perfectly unuspicious when I found the next morning the car was all right."

REDS TRAVELING FAST; HAVE LEAD OF FOUR CONTESTS

Trimmed Pirates Again for Fifth Straight Win Yesterday

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Entrants in the National League race have their eyes on a hustling pair of Red Stockings dimly discernible through the dust. Cincinnati is travelling fast.

Where only a week or so ago the margin between first and sixth place teams in the circuit was only a matter of four full contests, it is now nine, and Cincinnati has a four game advantage over the fast climbing St. Louis Cardinals now in second position.

Yesterday Carl Mays, veteran submarine server, showed the Pirates overboard, the Red's fifth straight victory over the champions. Mays scattered nine hits to win by 6-3. Curtis Walker made three bingles to carry his consecutive game hitting record to 17.

Brooklyn stopped the Philadelphia winning streak at five games by winning in the eleventh, 4 to 3. Bill Marriott, Dodger baseman, obtained two homers, his second tying the game in the ninth. Charley Hargrave's single with the bases full settled the verdict.

Giants Beaten Twice.
The New York Giants, playing ragged baseball, went down before the very lively Boston Braves twice, 5-0 and 7-13.

Babe Ruth made another effort to catch up with that famous 1921 record by poling a homer at Philadelphia while the Yankees were beating the Athletics, 7-5. It was the Babe's 26th and he now stands two games behind his pace of five years ago. Lou Gehrig also hit for the circuit before he was banished for protesting a decision.

Joe Shaute of Cleveland hurled a good game and was accorded with sufficient hitting to beat Chicago, 4-2. Bryan Harriss, one of the pitchers traded by Connie Mack to the Red Sox for Howard Ehmke, pitched the best game of the day when he set down Washington with five hits and won 2-1.

St. Louis gave a trio of Detroit pitchers a terrific pounding, piling up 14 safe blows in an 11-3 victory. Bing Miller's two doubles and single gave him a perfect day at the bat.

SPORT BRIEFS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A fourteen year old Kansas City youngster today is the center of interest in the Illinois state tennis championships at Skokie Country Club. He took his older and larger opponent in straight sets yesterday, 7-5, 6-0. He kept Howard Bancroft of San Diego, Calif., on the defensive throughout by a varied attack. The narrowing field of players today swept through advanced singles play in all divisions, considerably delayed by yesterday's rain storm, and the opening double matches.

Adolph Frankel of Los Angeles today claims a place in the national marathon golfing records with a total of 14 holes played between dawn and dusk yesterday. His best mark last year was 135 holes. He was in a state of collapse at the finish.

Injuries will keep Willie Ames, Akron, Ohio, out of the ring for three weeks, his physician declared today. Ames, a junior light weight, injured a ligament in his shoulder during his bout with Charley Goodman of New York, at Canton, Monday night.

Spanish football players were too rough for the West Ham British football team which recently played six games, four of which it won, in Spain. Captain George Kay of the West Ham team was left at Vigo, Spain, with a broken nose and is expected to be in a hospital for some time. Nearly every member of the British team returned to London with either a black eye or a bruised shin.

Don Lee's Invader, scratch boat in the San Pedro to Honolulu yacht race, has been declared winner. The Jubilo, with a handicap of 117 hours and 44 minutes, having failed to arrive at 10:20 a. m. The Poinsett won second place and the Teva third. The prize was a trophy offered by Sir Thomas Lipton. The forty foot Jubilo has not yet been reported.

A young man named Jones, emperor of golf, on Friday will enter the gateway of America in triumph. He will receive a welcome such as Broadway has accorded heretofore to princes of various realms. Bobby Jones in the past has gone back to his Atlanta to receive due honors, but this time the Atlantans are coming to him, for he is bringing back from England his first foreign trophy, the British open title.

Rocky Kansas will defend his lightweight boxing crown here Saturday afternoon against odds in reach and weight. Sammy Mandell with his five feet seven will tour Kansas by five inches, and the challenger's reach of 67 inches will give him a four inch advantage over the champion.

GRANGE DONATES CUP FOR AURORA AUTO RACE MON.

100-Mile Race Monday at Exposition Park Big Feature

Aurora, Ill., June 30—(AP)—Dirt track automobile race drivers who will compete here Sunday and Monday in the Exposition Park 100 mile derby and elimination heats will have not only $5,000 in cash prizes to contest for, but a massive silver cup which is offered by Harold "Red" Grange to the derby winner.

In a letter received today from the gridiron star, he said "I have just learned of the revival of the 100 mile championship at Aurora, and I am wondering if you will use the cup I am forwarding as one of your prizes. It is little enough to do but it expresses in some degree the feeling I have for the dirt track racing game and my friends in the old home town district."

Outside of football "Red's" greatest love in the way of sport is automobile racing. Three days after he arrived on the Pacific coast, he bought one of the surplus Miller cars Frank Lockhart had in his string at Indianapolis Memorial Day. Grange had the racer made into a roadster.

Entries in the races at Exposition Park number 22 include Les Allen who won the championship last year, Mile. Joan La Costa, the French woman driver who exceeded 145 miles an hour in her first trials in Florida will be at the wheel in one of the derby preliminaries. She is the only woman entry in the races.

Revive Running Races at Peoria July 1 to 17

Peoria, Ill., June 30—(AP)—For the first time in nearly 15 years the Peoria Jockey Club swings its gates open Thursday for a 15 day running race meeting—July 1 to July 17. The fair grounds is resplendent in new paint and otherwise transformed by the many improvements instituted for the past two weeks.

The inaugural handicap at six furlongs with a prize of $1,000 will draw a select field as there are eighteen of the best sprinters in training nominated.

The arrival of Judge Martin Nathanson, one of the most prominent turf authorities lends added importance to the success of the coming meeting with men of his standing adorning the judge's pagoda assures formful racing.

That the meeting will be an overwhelming success is certain as some of the best thoroughbreds in training are here to participate in the racing and the management has made special preparations to care for the large crowd that will be on hand to pay their homage to the thoroughbred horse.

Latso Shows He's Champion in Easy Victory Last Eve

Newark, N. J., June 30—(AP)—Pete Latso of Scranton, Pa., has made good in the first defense of his recently won welterweight title.

Willie Harmon of New York, a rugged, experienced ring man, who for some time has been rated high in the division, stood up against the former mine boy for less than five rounds last night and then took the count for the first time in his life.

The challenger went down after he had essayed to meet the champion toe to toe. A solid right to the jaw ended the fray. Harmon was down in the opening round, but it was the result of a wild swing and he was on his feet immediately. In that round he managed to find the range for two stiff blows. That was the end of his offensive however.

REYNOLDS SLAM BALL HARD AND TRIM I. N. U. CO.

Big Crowd Saw Tuesday's Game in Twilight League

The Reynolds Wire company's hard hitting baseball team won from the I. N. U. nine in their game of the Twilight Factory league schedule at Browns Field last evening by a score of 5 to 3. The Utilities team played good baseball, but the wire makers had a decided edge on them through experience gained in the playing of several games out of town this season.

Riley pitched good ball for the Utilities but his offerings were pounded to all parts of the field. C. Hargrave, who did the twirling for the wire drawers, was touched up liberally for hits, but the Utilities men were weak on securing hits when they were most needed. On several occasions, the Utilities team rallied and filled the bases, only to fail.

There was a good attendance out to witness the second game of the schedule and the popularity of the return of baseball to Dixon appears to assure a successful venture, even from the standpoint of five inning games played after supper. The next game will be played Thursday evening of this week. The teams last evening lined up as follows:

Reynolds Wire Company—Spueland 1b; Miller, cf; McDonald, c; Hargrave, p; Trotter, 3b; B. McDonald, ss; B. Hargrave, 2b; Winebrenner, lf; Zimmerman, rf.

I. N. U.—Higgs, rf; Hargrave, 3b; Haupt, c; Riley, p; Taubel, ss; Nelson, 1b; Ziegmond, 2b; Edwards, rf; Schultz, cf. Umpire—Lightner.

Indianapolis—Merle Taylor, Indianapolis featherweight, won a decision over Joey Klein, Milwaukee (10); Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, fought a draw with Mike O'Dowd, Louisville, bantamweight (10).

Sidelights

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
George Sisler and Bing Miller set the pace for the Browns with three hits each. Sisler had three hits including a triple and Bing had two doubles in his collection of three.

Babe Ruth took a whirl at first basing in the game against the Athletics after Gehrig had been banished. The Bambino did a good job at the initial sack, figuring in two double plays.

Shaute of the Indians kept the White Sox guessing while his team mates drove Milton Strengrafe off the hill and then continued the attack on Hollis Thurston for a victory.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who has been in a hospital for about a week undergoing treatment for a foot infection, will probably leave for his home today.

Walker of the Reds has hit safely in 17 consecutive games. In the last game he celebrated the occasion by smashing out three hits in four times up, one of the slams being good for three bases.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cardinals and champion batter of the National League for the last six seasons, is in a hospital. He underwent an operation for the removal of a carbuncle on his thigh. He is expected to get back into the game by Sunday.

Slim Harris made his debut as a Red Sox pitcher and turned back the Senators in a close game. His support was wonderful and he allowed only five hits.

Teachers Urged to Pay Attention to Morality

Philadelphia, June 29—(AP)—The moral education of the children of America is one of the most important problems facing the school teacher today, and the National Education Association, now holding its 64th annual convention here, was urged to do its best to remedy the situation.

In his report of the committee on committees, J. H. Newlon, Supt. of Schools of Denver, Colo., told delegates that the fundamental principles of living are not getting the proper consideration from the teachers.

"The general assembly of the N. E. A.," Mr. Newlon said, "will have to make a definite pronouncement which will be a reply of the organized teachers to the criticism of moral problems heard today."

Approximately 15,000 teachers of all classes of schools, principals, superintendents of schools and others interested in education are attending the convention. Discussions covering all its phases are held at meetings of the 30 groups and organizations that comprise the N. E. A.

SWIMMING IS BIG FEATURE SPORTS OF ASSOCIATIONS

Over Million Have Been Taught to Swim in Last 16 Years

One national swimming championship and three new world's records mark the chief accomplishments of Y. M. C. A. athletics since January 1 of this year according to a summary prepared by the local Young Men's Christian Association. In other fields of sport the Association has been equally active and numerous championships have changed hands. But the competition in these branches of sport has been principally confined to the ranks of the Association itself.

The swimming records are held by the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. swimming team, which recently won the United States Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championship at Chicago, in competition with some of the best swimmers of this country. Walter Lauffer made a new record for the 300-yard medley, with a time of 3 minutes 45.25 seconds, at the A. A. U. meet. At the Fourth National Y. M. C. A. Swimming Championship Tournament, won by the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. team, he carried off the 50-yard free-style world championship in 24 seconds. Harry Glancy broke the world's record at the same meet for the 440-yard swim, doing it in 5 minutes 4.45 seconds.

Big Beginners' Class. The swimming class which started at the local "Y" yesterday, became so large that it had to be divided. Four little chaps are given special individual attention every Wednesday morning at 9:30. These boys are, James, and John Burke, Clark Cahill and Robert Coakley. After these boys have learned to swim it is expected that some kind of an exhibition or tournament will be put on when all the boys entering will be called upon to pass certain tests.

The Y. M. C. A. has been responsible for promoting nationwide contests in various branches of sport, among them basketball, swimming, handball, tennis, track and bowling. Thousands of men and boys from coast to coast, in Canada and in the American insular possessions, have taken part. Teams are trained by more than 900 Association physical directors in Y. M. C. A.'s all over the United States.

One of the most popular items on the physical work program of the Y. M. C. A. is swimming. In the last sixteen years more than 1,000,000 swimmers have been taught by the Association in Y. M. C. A. swimming pools, and 100,000 have become qualified life-savers. A new set of swimming and life-saving tests have been adopted this year by the National Council, and already 416 life-saver examiners have been appointed to give the tests in different localities.

Virginia Perry, erstwhile star, now a derelict, discovers that she is Betsy's mother, but doesn't reveal it for fear of blighting the girl's career. Strangely moved by Virginia's coaching, Betsy makes a great hit. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts" of Hollywood, entices Betsy to a hotel ostensibly to talk over a contract. When he makes advances Betsy swoons just as Virginia breaks in.

Virginia nodded toward the open door to a connecting room. "I got in through there," she said. "Luckily I overheard your arrangements this afternoon, came here, learned what room you had taken, hired the next one—and opened the connecting door with a skeleton key before you got here. I've heard every word of your rotten line, Marshall; but, believe me, you're not going to get away with it!"

"What are you butting into my business for—you, who weren't fit to bring up your own daughter?"

"You lie!" cried Virginia. But as Marshall mentioned Virginia's own daughter a thought, a fact, struck him with the force of a gale of wind.

"Good God, why have I been so dumb not to remember? Now I know. Terwilliger! Your husband's name was John Terwilliger Howson. This girl—is your daughter?"

Betsy was stirring now, and Marshall began to laugh hysterically at Virginia, looking wildly from her to Betsy. Ha, ha! What a joke! This fair, innocent creature the daughter of the worst lot in Hollywood! Now you both are in my power, by God! What a story for the scandal hungry papers! McLain's pretty 'find' the daughter of Mrs. Perry, the besmirched outcast of the movies! And I'll broadcast it unless—"

Hal's kisses strummed like a benediction.

Betsy was opening her eyes now, but without understanding as yet. Virginia's fingers tightened on the trigger of the gun that was pointed directly at Marshall's head.

"I'll tell her!" laughed Marshall, bolsterously, whirling toward Betsy as if to shake her back to quicker consciousness to hear the news.

Those were his last words—that his last move. A pistol shot cracked on the air, and when Betsy, shocked into full consciousness, leaped to her feet it was to look, with startled eyes from the sight of Marshall on the floor expiring in a pool of his own darkling blood to Virginia holding a still smoking pistol and glaring down at him remorselessly.

"You've killed him, you wicked woman!" shrieked Betsy, clasping hands on which the knuckles showed white to her eyes, as if to close out a horrible nightmare.

"He deserved it," said Virginia tonelessly. "Thank God I did it just in time to prevent him from ruining you!"

But Betsy, in the frenzied excitement of the moment, could only remember that she had considered Marshall a good deal of a benefactor.

"Oh, oh," she screamed, "you shouldn't have done this! He wouldn't have harmed me. He had been good to me!"

Virginia was calm. "Get out of here quickly, child. They will be coming to get me."

"No, no! I'll stay—and tell what you've done—testify against you. You've committed a terrible sin, and you must be punished."

Betsy was frantic. But loud knocking upon the hall door, which Marshall had locked, and harsh demands for entrance shocked her into a newer realization.

"You hear?" cried Virginia, losing her poise. "It's the police. They'll break in. Go while there's time—please, dear child, for my sake. Don't get your fair name mixed into this foul scandal."

Virginia was on her knees pleading now. She rose when she saw that Betsy was wavering and hustled her towards the adjoining room, pushed her in there with a final injunction to make good her escape, then closed and locked the door after her.

Then, quite self-contained again, not even noticing that she trod upon Marshall's limp hand as she stepped over him, Virginia went to the door and admitted the alarmed crowd of hotel officials, house detectives, policemen.

The picture that met their eyes told a complete story. There was only one thing: "Why did you do it?" asked one detective as he snatched the pistol out of her listless hand.

Virginia smiled faintly. "Oh, I don't know. Sort of an accident, I suppose. We were just carousing, and I don't know exactly what happened. But it did happen, and there he is, and here I am, and what the hell of it?"

"Nothing much," said one of the burly cops, "except that in this county sentiment don't keep women who commit willful murder from getting their necks stretched on the gallows!"

CHAPTER 17

Scandal, like every other commodity, is governed largely by the law of supply and demand. If the public had no appetite for the morbid inspection of dirty linen those first editions next morning would not have probed so vulgarly into Virginia's career. Yet the ill wind of publicity that stirred up every dead leaf of Virginia's past blew some good to the principals concerned. Betsy, reading the paper with Hal, to whom she had gasped the whole affair, understood at last the truth of Virginia's fascinated interest in her. On Hal's advice she fled straight to McLain.

The prophesizing policeman had reckoned without appreciation of the honest difference between mere sentimentalism and the tolerance of the unwritten law. McLain, after Betsy's tears and lips had told their tale, knew that no human jury would ever condemn a mother for saving her girl-child from stain.

It was McLain who took Betsy to Virginia in the city jail, then turned aside, with very un villainous mist dimming the eyes whose professional heartlessness had thrilled untold millions, while mother and child found each other.

And it was McLain who gaily threw rice a month later at the station where Betsy and Hal waited to board the eastbound train with Virginia, their mother, whom they were taking to the peaceful seclusion of the Valley.

Clara was there, too—dear, cynical Clara, who still talked about "quitting this bum game" but never would. Clara tested Betsy.

"Don't you regret giving up your career just when it was starting?" Betsy merely laughed and shook her head: "No more reaching for the moon! The broken hearts of Hollywood are not the fault of the movies, but of the silly, romantic boys and girls who rush toward the glittering mirage of easy money only to find it doesn't exist! There isn't any easiest way in the movies or any other business. Cameron was right—it's hard work plus natural talent. And the only talent I had—was the help of dear friends!"

"Any acting we do hereafter will be in the Centipede Dramatic Club," laughed Hal.

"See that they don't make you ride a horse, Hal," chuckled McLain.

"—and don't let them cast you in a bathing girl part, Betsy, dear," teased Clara.

Hours later the Limited bore them into the haven of the Valley, whose honeysuckle brushed like a balm over Life's sorest hurt—wounded ambition.

"Now I understand the strange sense of being at home that I felt when I first saw the Valley," exclaimed Betsy. "It has always been destined to be my home—with you, dear Hal!"

Later, when Virginia had been welcomed to the bosom of the Chutneys, the lovers strolled away alone into the Valley. Dusk was coming on; a gentle breeze nodded the meadow grasses.

"Remember that first night in Hollywood?" whispered Betsy, awed; "I had a vision then of us walking forever down this Valley, hand in hand."

Hal's kisses strummed like a benediction on the cupid's bow of her lips. Again a low descending sun stole the flame from the wild flower caudles. But on the altars within the hearts of Betsy and Hal now were lighted tapers that neither time nor distance nor night nor storm would ever extinguish.

The End.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose marriage is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

When Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to Washington to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returns, gossip has retailed some of John's doings and greatly magnified them. Sharp quarrels between him and Fay follow. She is always fearful that he will get into trouble, but he thinks she just misunderstands him.

One of these quarrels drives him "out on a tear," and when Fay learns that he has been out again with other women, she threatens to leave him if it is repeated. He begins to think Fay is starting to dislike him, and it suddenly seems as though the world is against him. He becomes aware of the fact that people are talking about him, and DICK MENEFEE, a young doctor and John's best friend, takes him to lunch one day to warn him "to watch his step" as the rumor is going the rounds that he is drinking heavily and neglecting his wife.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXXIX

MENEFEE shrugged his shoulders. "Lord knows who's at the bottom of it. One never knows where these rumors come from. The trouble is, they take little foundations of truth and erect structures of stupendous lies. I'd hate to see malicious gossip ruin you, John. Marriages do go on the rocks that way."

"If they'd only leave me alone," John muttered between clenched teeth. "If people only would understand me. I'm decent, Dick; you know that. But even Fay—" He stopped.

Dick laid a hand on his shoulder. "That stuff about writing your copy when you're drunk, John—I might have been circulated by this new ad vertising outfit, Kelly and Jones. I think they're a couple of sharpshooters."

"They looked decent enough to me, Dick. They wouldn't."

"I know they're after some of your business. I've heard a lot of talk. Business is a hard-boiled proposition. It's often pretty dirty. You're not a business man, you know—no more than I am."

"I know it," John was silent for several minutes. Then he set loose some of the bitterness that was in his heart. "If people want to throw mud, why don't they throw it at someone who's more deserving of it than I am? If I take a drink, I'm a drunkard; if I say hello to a pretty girl, I'm running wild. How about—well, how about Noel Boyd, for instance? There's a man who's rotten and no mistake. The gradation of the gravel and stone shall be graded from the largest size to fine material and when the gravel or stone is tested by means of laboratory sieves, it shall comply with the following requirements:

Passing 1 1/2 inch sieve—not less than 100%.

Passing 1 inch sieve—not less than 50%.

You can't watch your disposition too carefully. A crab and a grouch are rarely successful. If your liver and stomach are in an unhealthy condition you can not have a sunny disposition because they affect the brain as well as the entire system. MAYR'S has been usually successful in such cases. Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied by bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. "I'm your partner, you know," John reminded him.

world outside of Margaret and my practice. Believe me, I'm glad of it. I miss a lot of trouble.

He took one of John's proffered cigarettes. "As for Noel Boyd," he went on, "he isn't worth talking about. You know, John, in a way a man can feel flattered when he is gossiped about. They usually pick a clean target to throw mud at; a dirty one, like Noel, doesn't show any new stain."

He paused a moment and studied the smoke curling up from the end of his cigarette. "Look at Pat Forbes, John. I'd hate to see you begin to lose your grip—like Pat's doing."

"What do you mean? I hadn't heard."

"Well, Pat, I understand, is in a pretty bad way. You know Pat's no saint, but neither is he a black-hearted sinner."

"I know that, all right. Pat's just a boy that never grew up."

"That about describes him. Still everyone doesn't know Pat the way we do, and some of this talk about him has reached the firm that employs him, and his hold on his job is weakening."

"Great Scott! I hadn't heard that, Dick."

"Well, it's true enough. Margaret saw Marian Forbes not long ago, and Marian told her. Pat's been pretty careless, of course, and he's needed a pretty stiff jolt to bring him around to his senses."

"I'm sorry to see the devil to hear that," John said.

"I'm telling you, John, because I don't want you to get in trouble. God knows I'm not trying to preach to you."

"I know you're not, Dick. It was decent of you to talk to me." He was gazing idly at his coffee cup, toying with his handle, and Menefee, knowing there was nothing more to be said, pushed back his chair.

He was not angry with Dick. Menefee—he had an idea that it had gone pretty hard with Dick to say what he had. But he was in a blind rage at the meddlers who were handing his name about Noel Boyd, he told himself, was just the kind who would take a keen delight in stirring up trouble. Then there was Eleanor Mason—he had been pretty short with her, she had failed him up several times since that night he had left her in her apartment, and he had found some excuse every time.

Nat Graham looked up as he walked in the office door. "John," he called, "could you come here a min. I motioned toward the little office which was used for private conferences."

"What now?" he thought. Nat was a heavy frown, and the hooded eyes gazed at John coldly.

Graham closed the door carefully. John, waiting for the other to speak, lit a cigarette and inhaled a deep draught of the smoke.

"All right, Nat, what's on your mind?" John put a lightness in his tone that he was far from feeling.

"We've lost an account," Graham said shortly. His mouth set in a hard line.

John frowned. "Who?"

"The Smithsonian Oil people." John whistled. "Well, I'll be damned. Give any reason?"

"The kind of reason they gave doesn't mean much." His manner was such as to indicate the responsibility for losing the account was John's.

"Well, what did they say?" John was trying to be calm, although Graham's manner was awfully irritating.

"They said they were placing their advertising with Kelly and Jones, because they weren't exactly satisfied with the results we got for them."

"Well, you can't blame them for that, Nat. We've got to expect to lose an account once in a while, and this is the first one. I wouldn't take it to heart too much—one swallow doesn't make a summer, you know."

Graham scowled, and muttered something about a "damaged reputation" and not being surprised if they lost more. Milburn's face reddened slowly, and he stared straight into Graham's eyes before he spoke again.

"Just what do you mean by 'damaged reputation'?" he asked coldly.

Nat shrugged. "I've gone into it before."

"Listen, here, Nat. I think I know what you're driving at. You're trying to tell me that Smithsonian quit us because people are saying things—because I've sort of put a blight on the firm's reputation. Is that it?"

Graham was silent. He stared ahead of him into the street.

"Nat, I'm talking to you. I want an answer."

Graham turned on him irritably. "What more of an answer do you want? I discussed this thing with you several months ago. If you want the business to go to hell—all right. He threw up his hands in a gesture of resignation.

John's partner had often rubbed him the wrong way, but now for the first time in his life John was feeling an actual hatred for Nat Graham.

He said, again forcing himself to be calm, "Smithson didn't quit us on that account, Nat. If they did, then I'd just as soon they did quit. Now, I want to tell you something. You've been acting rather peculiarly toward me for a long time. I don't know what it's all about, but if you're worrying about my morals I wish you'd quit it."

Graham reddened in annoyance but he said nothing. "I'm your partner, you know," John reminded him. "And lately you seem to have adopted the attitude that it isn't necessary to consult me on matters of policy. Perhaps if we went into the thing thoroughly," he said significantly, "we might find a totally different explanation for losing the Smithsonian account."

With that parting shot he turned abruptly away and left the room. He dared not trust himself to say anything more to Nat Graham, fearing that he might "fly off the handle" and say something in the heat of anger that he afterward would regret. But hot resentment was in him as he went back to his desk and tried vainly to apply some intelligence to the work in front of him.

At dinner that night Fay seemed preoccupied and he supposed that she was still nursing a grudge against him, but later on they went for a drive in the cool, late summer air and he noticed tears in her eyes.

"What's the matter, dear?" he asked, thinking "What in the name of heaven have I done now?"

But it was not what he feared. Fay said wrathfully, "Oh, it's that awful Mrs. Blodgett again."

Fay chose not to heed the irony in his tone. "I saw Mrs. Clark on the street today, and when I spoke to her she cut me dead."

"What—Mrs. Clark? Why, I thought you and she were good friends."

"I thought so too, but evidently we're not."

"But where does Mrs. Blodgett come in?"

"I saw Mrs. Robinson later, and she told me that Mrs. Blodgett had circulated the report that I was talking about Mrs. Clark."

"Why, the old hen! She did that?"

"I'll swear, Fay, if she were a man I believe I'd choke her. At that, I've got a good mind to take a poke at that skinny husband of hers."

But Fay was crying. He stopped the car, pulled up to the side of the road and put his arm around her. "There now, Fay, I wouldn't take it to heart. If Mrs. Clark was the right sort she wouldn't put any stock in such lies."

"How can people be so mean, John?" Fay sobbed.

"Don't ask me, honey. It takes all kinds to make a world, I suppose. With his arm around Fay, consoling her, he felt suddenly nearer to her in spirit than he had been in weeks.

Fay laid her head on his shoulder and dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief. "Never mind," John said, kissing the tears away, "we have each other."

Fay shivered. "It makes me so afraid, John."

"What makes you afraid, honey?" She shook her head, not knowing how to put in words this feeling of hers that an evil conspiracy was at work trying to hurt them. Other women might be able to laugh the things off that she took so to heart, but Fay, highly sensitive, was crushed.

But things did look a little brighter, with John to comfort her—this lovable, impetuous boy of hers. . . . And he, in his ignorance, did not know that what Fay cried out for was tenderness, consideration, constant evidence of his love. A word, a look, can sometimes spell the difference between happiness and tragedy. John tonight had been at her side when she sorely needed him. The next time her spirit cried out for his help he deserted her.

PROHIBITION PROTECTS YOUTH
Declares A. A. Stagg, Physical Director of University of Chicago At Hearings Before Senate Judiciary Committee

"God only knows what conditions would be, with the charged freedom which young people now have, if prohibition were not in existence," declared A. A. Stagg, physical director of the University of Chicago, in his testimony before the Sub-Committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee. "There would be an immeasurably greater amount of drunkenness and debauchery than there is now."

"In fact, it is my conviction that it is the greatest sort of blessing that prohibition has been a law during this unstable period when the youth of today have such vast freedom."

"It is this breaking down of the home and this irresponsibility on the part of the parents toward their children which creates the problem of today, and not the Volstead Act. The statement that prohibition has produced these conditions is an absurdity and pure bunk."

"The trouble with prohibition is not prohibition itself, but that it has not been given a fair chance. Before there should be any consideration of a change in the Volstead Act there ought to be the honest and conscientious effort made to enforce the law."

"This is not just my opinion; it is the opinion of some of the officers of the University of Chicago, and I have reason to think it is the opinion of millions of people in this country who are interested in giving the youth of the country every chance to grow up under the most favorable conditions, something which it cannot be truthfully said they now have."

"I come before you with no bias, and I am a member of none of the organizations that wanted me to come here. I was born in a poor neighborhood of factory workers, given to beer drinking, and as a boy I used to see the heads of nine out of twelve families in our block drunk and fighting. I saw multitudes of keg parties and saw young men drunk. The whole point of that is that some say you can't get drunk on beer. Well, I saw the boys and men get drunk—and women, too."

"I have been at the University of Chicago thirty-four years and before prohibition I used to see scores of the men drunk, coming along Fifty-fifth Street and Lake Park Avenue in Hyde Park. Since prohibition I have seen very few drunk."

"There has been an immense change and I know a large number of students personally. Furthermore, I am convinced that there is not anything like the amount of drinking in the middle west among the younger generation that there was before prohibition."

"As to obeying the law, a whole lot of folks haven't been playing the game on the square nor according to the rules. This whole nation should set aside personal wishes and co-operate for the law. I think it is terribly important that a moral wave, a religious wave, sweep this country. Parents are running away from their

REFERENDUM ON TAX CHANGES BY ILLINOIS C. OF C.

Dixon Members to Vote on Proposals to Alter Statutes

The members of the Chamber of Commerce of this city are to be given an opportunity to vote on a referendum proposed by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce on the tax amendment to the Illinois Constitution to be voted on by the people at the general election November 2, 1926.

According to a statement issued by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the proposed amendment to be voted upon by the people in November will give the General Assembly the power, first, to provide for a tax on incomes as well as upon persons and property and, second, to divide incomes, persons and property into classes and to levy a tax uniform as to each class. Real estate is to constitute a single class, with a minor exception.

The following arguments, gathered from various sources, have been compiled both for and against the amendment.

Arguments in Favor of the Proposed Amendment.

The General Assembly is now too much restricted in matters of taxation. Important changes can be made only by vote of the people through an amendment to the constitution and only one amendment can be voted upon at one time. To carry such an amendment must have a majority of all votes cast at the election. Therefore, those who do not vote on the amendment at all, in effect vote against it.

The proposed amendment provides for a tax on incomes. This is a new feature. The General Assembly may substitute the income tax for other taxes, fix exemption, made deductions, etc.

A two-thirds vote of the members elected to the General Assembly is required to pass tax laws and this constitutes a proper safeguard.

In theory, every person and corporation in Illinois now pays a tax in proportion to the value of his, her or its property.

In practice, a large amount of property escapes taxation.

Property that can be seen such as farms, houses and lots, railroads, manufacturing plants, stocks of goods, etc., is forced to bear a heavy share of the general property tax. This is commonly known as "tangible" property.

Property that can not easily be seen, if at all (such as stocks and bonds, mortgages and personal effects), escapes taxation in considerable measure. This is commonly known as "intangible" property.

Owners of property, under the present law, are required under oath to report their property to the tax officials, and the tax officials are required by law to secure proper returns, but there is much evasion.

The last report of the Illinois State Tax Commission shows the equalized assessed value of all property in the State for 1924 as follows: town and

Herbert Hoover Was a Rah-Rah Boy

BY TOM SIMS

'Twas back in the gay nineties at dear old Leland Stanford, Herbert Hoover, or just plain "Herb," was a sprightly youth of 21.

A typical "rah, rah" boy was Herb. You may see this from the classy cut of his clothes. He is second from the left in the above photo.

Pipe the makeup. Note the curve of the coat and the tilt of the hat, and pardon the rhyme, but see the craft.

Herb was starting out in the world just as thousands of 1926 college grads are doing.

He was an engineer. So he followed where his profession led—Mexico, Canada, Australia, Italy, Great Britain, South Africa, India, China, Russia, etc.

Eventually he became secretary of commerce under President Harding. And it was as U. S. food administrator in 1917-19 that he made the country "Hooverize."

There were other paths. Perhaps he enjoyed a game of horseshoes as well as anyone. Perhaps he realized working took up a lot of valuable time. But the moral of it all is this:

The photograph shows you the boy of 20 years ago. You know the man of today. And he spent no more time in making a success than he would have spent in making a failure.

city lots, 45.60 per cent; lands, 25.29 per cent; personal, 19.31 per cent; railroad property assessed by the Commission, 8.36 per cent; capital stock of corporations, other than railroads assessed by the Commission, 1.41 per cent; insurance premiums, .03 per cent. Lands, it will be observed, constitute 70.89 per cent of the above total.

Much personal property (such as savings deposits, etc.) is not now reported to the tax officials because the tax would eat up the earnings.

If personal property were divided into classes, as is proposed, and each class paid a tax it could afford, a large part of it would be reported.

Much of the tangible property now reported to tax officials is given a figure below its real value because owners feel that intangible property does not pay its fair share of taxation.

New York, Pennsylvania and Iowa give their legislatures practically free

General Assembly shall be required to pass tax legislation, is not a sufficient safeguard considering the very broad powers granted to the General Assembly.

The present law provides means for raising ample funds. Property today escapes taxation, first because the owners fail to make proper returns, or, second, because the taxing officials fail to make proper investigation. The General Assembly has already passed laws to correct this. The amendment adds nothing to it.

Illinois, like all states, is just now experiencing an orgy of spending, but we need not more money to spend, but more economy in our spending.

Classification of property for taxation will open the door to a disgraceful struggle among classes of property owners, each seeking an advantage over the others. The General Assembly will be beset constantly with appeals to make changes.

There are too many tax exempt securities. The percentage of tax exempt securities in the United States on July 1, 1925, was as follows: cities, towns and villages, 54.9 per cent; state issues, 17.8 per cent; counties, 14.8 per cent; school districts, 12.5 per cent. The total securities were 242 per cent greater than in 1912.

If the reapportionment plan carries, Cook County will have 15 more members of the General Assembly, and the state at large outside of Cook County will have 15 less. This will give Cook County a very influential voice in passing new tax laws for the whole state.

Nearly all of the money raised in Illinois by taxation is spent in the communities where it is raised.

Schools, cities, villages, counties, towns, etc., receive it. The people of each community can cut these taxes any time they choose. Further, if they believe that property is not properly assessed or the money not properly collected, they have the power to elect new assessors or new collecting officials.

Apparently a majority of the people do not favor a change in our taxing system. Nearly every attempt within recent years to change the system has failed to receive the necessary votes.

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is such a clean fuel that every housewife who burns it prides herself on the cleanliness of her spotless curtains, rugs and draperies, and clean walls.

She doesn't like coal dust and ashes "tracked" up from the basement over her floors and rugs every time the furnace is fixed.

From experience she knows that when burning "QUICK FIRE COKE" the furnace will not puff clouds of smoke and soot, to the ruination of her house furnishings and decorations.

When ordering coke for your winter supply, remember "QUICK FIRE COKE" is not a mere trade-mark, but a guarantee of efficiency, quality and service. Order by the registered trade name of "QUICK FIRE COKE" and insist upon having it and none other. It is manufactured by the Indiana Coke & Gas Company, Terre Haute, Indiana, under its own exclusive, special formula, perfected by years of experience and actual tests in all extremes of weather, and all sorts of home-heating furnaces. It is processed from the very highest quality Eastern bituminous coals, carefully tested and selected to produce a by-product coke that will hold fire longest and give the steadiest most uniform heat, with little ash, and practically no dirt nor dust. It is the superior fuel, cheaper than hard coal, and will give more heat, ton for ton, than either hard or soft coal. It does not deteriorate in storage, whether in bins or out in the open, as does soft coal. Thus one may put in his winter supply during the low-priced summer period and make an extra saving in fuel cost. Write today for free booklet on "How to Burn Coke."
